Conclusion Myocardial GRK2 expression and activity are mirrored by lymphocyte levels of this kinase, and its elevation in HF is associated with the loss of β -AR responsiveness and appears to increase with disease severity. The square root of the Jensen—Shannon distance is a distance metric between probability distributions.

Upon integration into UniProtKB, each entry is assigned a unique accession number, which is called 'Primary citable accession number'. Moreover, HRS cells are unique in the extent to which they have lost their B cell—typical gene expression pattern. To investigate complex biological phenomena, such as the immune response to vaccination, genome-wide association studies GWASs are a powerful approach.
