Muslim and Christian Women in Dialogue (Religions and Discourse)

This was possibly initiated by the observations made by Rosemary Radford Ruether in, Women-Church: Theology and Practice, and by the influence of Elizabeth Schüssler Fiorenza who has increasingly written and spoken about the need for a church ekklesia which is not hierarchical or clerical but is rather an inclusive, democratic discipleship of equals whereby all members, moved by the Spirit of Sophia-Wisdom, carry out various ministries in a service of justice, mutual empowerment and community sharing. Cf. Shagari, The Life and Legacy, 85—86. Religious groups saw this wave of thought as a threat to the revealed truths of scripture.
