The Company operates under a Charter received from Charles I in 1638 but it is known that there were earlier charters. The panel that makes the decision is drawn from qualified members of the profession within the company and we ask for feedback to see how the young trainee is progressing. As a result of the Great fire of London 1666 little is known of what transpired in the next 300 or so years as the Company's records were destroyed.

History Ireland

Eight finalists come to our hall to present their work to a judging panel made up of members of the company.

The trust supports other organisations within the stained glass community such as the British Society of Master Glass Painters and the Stained Glass Museum in Ely.

London livery companies

Many academic studies have been published, and no shortage of learned books, about the numerous public enquiries that have been made over several centuries regarding the wealth and privileges of the City and its Livery Companies.

Ancient Traditions in the City of London

Many were formed up until the 17th century, when political upheaval and the growth of London around the City meant the companies, which only controlled trade in the City itself, began to struggle to compete. A few examples illustrate the carve-out. We would like Nurses to be included in this impressive array of professionals.
