Public Service Responsibility of Broadcast Licensees (March 7, 1946) : National Association of Educational Broadcasters : Free Download, Borrow, and Streaming : Internet Archive

These are records that substantiate DBS providers' compliance with the Children's Television Act of 1990 and the FCC's rules that limit the type and amount of advertising during programming that is directed to children 12 and under. It concludes with an examination of six primary realms of public interest concern in broadcast television: diversity of programming, political discourse, localism, children's educational programming, access for persons with disabilities, and equal employment opportunity.

The Public Interest Standard in Television Broadcasting

The two rules were also upheld in the companion case that was consolidated into Red Lion by the Supreme Court. Television Producers and Distributors v. Public broadcasters will have to make a clearer distinction between themselves and commercial broadcasters.

Media Act: rules for broadcasters and programming

Equal opportunities apply to all commercial and non-commercial stations, as well as all legally qualified candidates for public office federal, state, and local throughout their campaigns. Pursuant to its marketplace approach, the FCC embarked on a sweeping program of deregulation, eliminating a number of long-standing rules designed to promote program diversity, localism, and compliance with public interest standards. Certain news-related programs are exempt from equal opportunities.

Europe's Public Service Media: Between Responsibility and Accountability

TV stations are generally entitled to be carried on cable television systems in their local markets. Video Recordings 10 items : Exhibit submitted in evidence and relating to a case involving Danville Community Antenna Systems, Inc. Quite often there are additional advisory or supervisory bodies that play a part in the regulatory framework with varying aims and degrees of competence.
