Hans Memling: biography

This 3-star venue features entertainment activities and a bar. The genius of this most famous of all Flemish Primitives, simultaneously a master of tradition and a brilliant innovator, is revealed in often surprising detail. Memling lived for a long time in the St.

Furthermore, Memling enhanced this effect by painting the man's hand on the bottom-right corner, creating the suggestion that there was room between the portrayed model and the background. An astute businessman, Memling regularly satisfied their expectations. The following year, in 2002, the painting was put up for sale at Sotheby's where it failed to sell with an estimate of £700,000 to £900,000.
