Antiworlds and the fifth ace : poetry : Voznesenskii, Andreï, 1933

I wonder if it's wrong or right that Antiworlds should date at night.

Poems by Andrei Voznesensky (Russia, 1933)

Up there, like a magic daemon, he smartly rules the Universe, Antibukashkin lies there giving Lollobrigida a caress. The housekeeper, I remember, Woke us at eight, and on weekends her phonograph sang Some old underworld song In a hoarse bass: I give thanks for the time, the place. I understood that architecture was burnt out in me.

Poems by Andrei Voznesensky (Russia, 1933)

My green-eyed kitty, like a tuner, receives the signals of the world. Αυτό που με απασχολεί μονάχα είναι η ποιότητα των μεταφράσεων της συλλογής. There're Antimen and Antilorries, Antimachines in woods and forests.

Antiworlds And The Fifth Ace by Andrei Voznesensky

His translations of poetry included Pasternak, Voznesensky and Mayakovsky. He also taught contemporary poetry.

THE ANTIWORLDS Poem by Andrei Voznesensky

On them reposes, prestidigitous, Ruling the cosmos, demon-magician, Anti-Bukashkin the Academician, Lapped in the arms of Lollobrigidas. Axes knock at the dacha As they board it up: Good-bye.
