The LEA could do this by demonstrating to the SEA that the current principal has a track record in improving student achievement and has the experience and skills needed to implement the intervention. It is overwhelmingly taught by those who have not mastered the language themselves yet--not mastered it as a whole including pronunciation and how to hold conversations--who got qualified to teach by. These proposed requirements would implement these changes, make other revisions that reflect lessons learned from four years of SIG implementation, and help ensure consistency between this program and other Department initiatives.
