Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution

The Section 3 disqualification could be enforced by Congress passing a law or a nonbinding resolution stating that the January 6 riot was an insurrection, and that anyone who swore to uphold the Constitution and who incited or participated in the riot is disqualified under Section 3. This means that the court ruled that the Second Amendment limits state and local governments to the same extent that it limits the federal government.

Bill of Rights

Historian , who has explored the question of to other countries, argues that: Many things claimed as uniquely American—a devotion to individual freedom, for example, or social opportunity—exist in other countries. The Second Amendment declares: A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed. The American Indians, as they were then called, were forced to move westward, losing their homes, their lands, and often their lives.
