He joins the campaign during its earliest preliminaries and sticks with the marathon down to the hour of concession on election night. Enroute to town from SFX I espied the Cow Palace in the distance and recalled White reporting that a fan dancer, Sally Rand, had entertained the Democratic conventioners there in '64. The Making of the President:The 1960s follows the presidential campaigns of '60, '64 and '68.

Or the Episcopalian accountant with General Electric, who had voted straight Republican since he cast his first ballot in 1940: why did he defect to a Democrat in 1964? By the time I'd grown two years older, though, I had a dawning social and political consciousness, and a growing realization that society was something significant that I was part of, and needed to understand and have serious opinions about, because it had an impact on my life and everyone else's. And there were those who began to ponder over the possible unleashing of nuclear weapons: this, too, is not unthinkable but it can be undiscussable.
