Residual Dry Matter It is easier to see the amount remaining than to estimate the portion removed. Intensity of use versus leaf area for ongoing photosynthesis during the growing season has important implications for plant physiological responses to grazing and regrowth.

Monitoring Handbook for State Agencies

Updates to Chapter 1 and 2, and Exhibit 2-2 also reflect applicability to the TA Program. The utilization map for an allotment or pasture can help range managers determine whether or not the grazing plan is functioning as designed.

Laboratory Tests

If you find errors, discrepancies, or other points of confusion, please contact the appropriate laboratory to ensure that upcoming editions can correct or clarify the problem. The Conflict of Interest is posted online for review and acceptance. Short-term annual indicators such as streambank alteration are useful.
