The New England Courant: Silence
Dogood letters

They were not affected in any way by the Titles Deprivation Act of 1917. London Gazette, 27655, 8 March 1904, p. Thirdly, In ships and Munition our own, the number and quantity employed severally; the Number imbarqued in those ships; and what prejudice and discouragement of Trade; the Council that directed such Employments; the several success, as at Algier and Cadiz, Strangers and those Ships either of Allies or Enemies: Allies hired by contract to serve, and now used or taken as Prize; if so, how then delivered and dealt withal in Courts of Justice; what success hath followed upon Justice done them? Thus in my harsh, brief way not having time to make large discourses I do my endeavours to make your judgment concur with mine in this particular; as they do in all the rest.

The Letters, Speeches and Proclamations of King Charles I

About the same time his Majesty being informed that there was great liberty taken by divers of his Subjects to resort to the hearing of Mass at Durham-house in the Lodgings of a Foreign Ambassador; the Privy Council taking notice thereof, and accounting it scandalous to this Church, and of ill example to be suffered at any time, but much more in this time of Parliament, required the Bishop of Durham to apprehend such of his Majesty's Subjects as should be present at the Mass. Prince Henry of Battenberg July 22, 1885 Victoria Reg.
