Unfortunately, neither the stone nor a complete rubbing of the stone remains today, although the text of the memorial has been preserved in the Chin shih ts'ui pien, and the Ch'uan t'ang wen. A representative of 3 independent experiments is shown.

Bequeathed Teachings Sutra

Tsukamoto added much to the discussion in a 1937 article which drew attention to records IX , X , and XI ; he feels that the extant rubbing is really from the stone in T'ang-yin province but ventures nothing about the date of the stele. But he did not identify himself with the teachings found in the classical Taoist texts, and had no use for the T'ien-shih Taoists.

Chinese Reliquary Inscriptions and the San

Authorship note: Wei-Chih Tsai, Sheng-Da Hsu, Chu-Sui Hsu, and Tsung-Ching Lai contributed equally to this work. The entry in this catalogue has caused some confusion.
