Of these organizations, by far the most prominent was the PFA , which by the fall of 1989 seemed poised to take power from the Communist Party. A week after fighting began, the oil workers themselves took the initiative to extend their work to 12-hour shifts, with no days off, no holidays, and no vacations until the end of the war.

Azerbaijan Soviet Socialist Republic

Borders of Azerbaijan and Armenia, like elsewhere in the USSR, were redrawn several times, yet neither side was completely satisfied with the results. The republic gained the second Order on 15 March 1935 during the observation of its 15th anniversary. Military conscription in the Azerbaijan SSR was introduced only after the establishment of Soviet control, with the number of people being called up for service being minimal at first.
