On the contrary, as will be shown, neither Péron nor Freycinet ever saw any chart or journal taken from Flinders. A similar difference of dates, which puzzled Labilliere in writing his Early History of Victoria 1 108, occurs as to the first sighting of Port Phillip by Flinders. Freycinet's notes nowhere meet the gravest feature of the case—the prolongation of the imprisonment of Flinders until the French could complete their own charts for publication.

There is also appended to volume 3 of the same work a table of geographical positions as calculated by the ship's officers. Thus security from attack, chartered autonomy, and governing capacity, with the absence of organised pugnacious tribes, have combined to achieve the unique result of a continent preserved from aggression, disruption, or bloody strife for over one hundred and twenty years.
