But, here again, standards of comparison are derived from cultural and social roots. Pages are crisp and clean, binding tight.

What Is Self

Well, you might say, things have changed, and although 21st-century girls now have a strong and positive identity, adult women still struggle with low self-esteem, little sense of mastery or agency in the world, and ambivalence over whether they should be feminine or masculine. For both girls and boys, those who felt supported by parents, teachers, and friends in expressing their points of view felt they had a stronger voice.

Women are ambivalent over whether they want to be feminine or masculine, and ping-pong back and forth between roles. This expansion of the life space also results in gradual expansion and differentiation of the self itself. Your inner thinking, age, any potential illnesses, disabilities, or physical limitations, and your job can affect your self-esteem.
