The Beginnings of the Fur Trade

If Pier 21 could talk it could tell many stories. Most of these immigrants came from the agriculturally depressed region of northeast Iceland, which was further affected by a number of detrimental volcanic eruptions in the 1870s that caused remaining arable land to be covered in debris.

Fur Trade in Canada

They collected furs and pelts from other First Nations hunters and took them to the HBC posts on the coast. Over 7,000 volunteered to fight in the South African War 1899—1902, popularly known as the Boer War, and over 260 died. These alliances were tested and proved to be strong as war did eventually break out between Britain and its former American colonies.

History of the Northwest Territories

Despite their reluctance to accept these cross-culture marriages, there was not a lot that the Hudson's Bay Company could have done to stop them.

The Dream that Solved a Murder

Indian agents accordingly began encouraging First Nations to abandon their traditional lifestyles and to adopt more agricultural and sedentary ways of life.
