Cochin and Amsterdam Cochin figured in other ways, too, in the history of writing and printing relating to the Jews of India. Hebrew type was introduced again from 1882 by several educational presses serving the Bene Israel and the Baghdadis. Brill makes the entire corpus of Indian Jewish literature accessible to researchers for the first time.

Hebrew Printing and Graphic Art on the Malabar Coast Short-lived Hebrew presses established at Poona, beginning with lithography in 1870 and followed by type until 1888, and at Cochin in 1877, stand out in their linguistic variety, their content, and their graphics. This work is the first instance of Hebrew lithographic printing in India, where in the 19th century 'stone printing' played nearly as large a role as printing with movable type.
