Comparative Youth Justice

ACT is an abbreviation for Association of Consumers and Taxpayers. The Crime and Disorder Act 1998 replaced the previous practice of police cautioning with a system of reprimands and final warnings. In addition, it allows for the use of extra-judicial sanctions Sections 10, 11, 12 with young persons whose offences are considered too serious to be dealt with only with a warning or caution, but not serious enough to warrant formal court proceedings.
