Waldo County ME Newspapers and Obituaries

This collection is more or less complete since 1826 but the Library also has an extensive archive of earlier publications. What the two options have in common is that there is rarely an index, so you need to have a fairly precise date and, in most cases, geographical area, because searching these old papers page by page, whether on microfilm or hard copy, or in pages of newspaper snippet can be very time-consuming.

Port Fairy Gazette (Vic. : 1914

The Reading Rooms at the state-of-the-art Boston Spa archive - the new permanent home of the Newspaper Collection - can now be visited by researchers.

Contact us

Issues are available by subscription or online, and are fully searchable via the website. You can also contact us to buy a print copy of The Gazette or a subscription. The London Gazette and the Belfast Gazette are free to view and are easy to search.

Government gazettes

The time spans will vary, but may be surprisingly extensive.

Belfast Gazette Website

You can search its database see NEWSPLAN box by either newspaper title or by location, but to view the newspapers you have to visit Kildare Street, in Dublin. Our offices are no longer able to accept notices by post or fax from 5 November 2020. The 300,000 items on the database spans 1737—1800, but there are gaps, most notably in the period to 1750, when only about one-quarter of the pages published have survived.

Waldo County ME Newspapers and Obituaries

If a researcher now wants to view a newspaper that isn't held on microfilm or digitally, an original hard copy can be ordered from Boston Spa with 48 hours notice. Subscription The Belfast Gazette Published weekly by The Stationery Office, The Belfast Gazette is a similar publication to the London and Edinburgh Gazettes.
