Dirāsāt fī tārikh al

It was, also, a meeting point of inflow for recitors and creative hymnodists.

Mahmoud Khalil Al Hussary

Between his birth in 1917 and his decease 63 years after, He got attached to the acquisition of all sciences that have any relationship with the Noble Koran. He became, after a long shining way, the boss of a school which concerned with the art of reciting the Noble Koran.

Usd al

Thus, he got Al-Azhâr diploma of the tenth Koran lectionaries in 1958. It puts us in an active listening position and makes the listener feel the responsibility of listen. Then, he went to Ahmadienne Mosque which was the privileged destination of students who are seeking knowledge about the recitation of Koran under the supervision of eminent professors like Mustafâ Al-Murawwij.

Al

The best moments of his life were the ones in which he used to read the verses of the quite revelation with his own knowledge. So can anyone please advise whether it is available with all Suras or not and if it is available, then provide any link. Ibn al Athir did not mention the complete isnad of this narration.

Abu Musab al

Indeed, he remained the head of all Islamic recitors during twenty years and became a researcher academic member among many great scholars of Al-Azhar. Before tracing his own path among the famous recitors at that time, he was educated under the supervision of noble professors and scholars in Al-Azhar, and attended their meetings and symposiums of Al-Husayn Street, which was a place where Egyptian thinkers, artists and intellectuals used to meet.

Abu Musab al

People who used to rush to that mosque from the four corners of Egypt used to welcome him warmly especially during the annual celebration of As-Sayyid Ahmad Al-Badawi. Therefore, there is no need for a separate reply for the reference of Ihya al Mayyit.
