Diversity in Health Care Organizations

A partir da análise dos dados coletados, obtivemos temas relacionados a sentimento de abandono, solidão, revolta, ingratidão, convívio com a dor crônica, satisfação de moradia na instituição asilar, produtividade e relacionamento social. Ethnocentrism not only affects interactions between nurses and clients or groups, but also creates or reinforces inequities in accessing health care. The Canadian Nurses Association, the Canadian Association of Schools of Nursing, the American Nurses Association, the American Organization of Nurse Executives, and the US Office of Minority Health are among the major regulatory nursing bodies and organizations that recognize the moral and ethical duty of nurses to advocate for and provide culturally competent care. Cultural competency and cultural safety are key skills for nurses to acquire and sustain.
