At the intermediate stage, they gained from public assistance in the provision of technologies of practical use Kawano. It pursued the NR policy as an integral part of the rural development strategy for Malay economic advancement under the NEP. Thailand may be at a crucial moment in which it is seen if Thailand remains a follower or steps forward as a global leader of rubber manufacturing.

Between theory and practice: Marxist thought and the politics of the Japanese Socialist Party

Finally, we can obtain certain insights about the economic prospects of resource-rich countries from the experiences of the Malaysian and Thai rubber industries. The author also wishes to express appreciation to Steven Ericson, Steven Reed, Atsuko Hirai and other participants in the Japan Forum of Harvard University for the opportunity to present this paper in an earlier form and for their helpful comments and questions.
