History of citizenship legislation

Provide details and share your research! British citizenship is the most common type of British nationality, and the only one that bestows automatic right of abode in the UK.

Child born outside Canada to Naturalized parent

Where in pursuance of this Act the name of a child is included in a certificate of naturalization granted to his parent, or where, in pursuance of any Act repealed by this Act, any child has been deemed to be a naturalized British subject, by reason of residence with his parent, such child shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a person to whom a certificate of naturalization has been granted. In general, these provisions withdrew CUKC status from anyone who became a citizen of the newly independent country, unless the person had a connection with the UK or a remaining colony e.

Canadian nationality law

This special grant was also available for non-Canadian children born to Canadian fathers out of wedlock between the period of 17 May and 14 August 2004 after a court ruling. In 2015, Bill C-24 further granted Canadian citizenship to British subjects with ties to Canada but who did not qualify for Canadian citizenship in 1947 either because they had lost British subject status prior to 1947, or did not qualify for Canadian citizenship in 1947 and had not yet applied for naturalization.

British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act 1914

Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada. Special certificate in case of doubt. This distinction in the law, which would admit one brother to succeed as heir to the other, though their father be an alien, and yet not admit a son to inherit from his grandfather because his father was an alien, is very subtle.

Nationality and Citizenship Act 1948

The Canadian Citizenship Act, which was in force from January 1, 1947, until February 14, 1977, contained several provisions for automatic loss of Canadian citizenship. By remaining there after the declaration of independence, and after that statute, the party had determined his right of election to withdraw, and had, by his presumed consent, become a member of the new government, and was, consequently, entitled to protection, and bound to allegiance.
