Rather than arbitrary aesthetic or stylistic prejudice, all decisions are based on project specific information — Information Driven Design. Today, the majority of the large and more established architectural firms, such as 3XN, Henning Larsen Architects and SHL, obtain their revenue from projects located outside of Denmark. Garaget is located in the Malmö City centre and have many activities including a maker space.

Design and Architecture: What is Danish Design?

The project also won the annual 'Vejle Award' as 2010 Building of the Year. The 80 per cent of their time is pre-committed by government and the remaining 20 per cent left open for flexible and ad hoc requests.

Jakob is currently overseeing the Pont de Bondy metro station and Europa City Masterplan in Paris. What role would the architect play in generating clever design solutions that give the illusion of space, while also housing or entertaining larger populations? At BIG, his responsibilities include code, zoning, life safety and accessibility compliance reviews, developing consultant scopes of work, consultant coordination, work plans, project scheduling, space planning, architectural detailing, building systems research, project budget analysis, construction administration, and client presentations.

Ten projects from the Royal Danish Academy propose solutions for a sustainable future

BIG IDEAS explores new intellectual territory in both the digital and material realm through three specific areas.

Roulade is made from High Density foam cut into a fixed shape reminiscent of a rolled up mattress. A VISION FOR BLUE SPACE Upon a review and site visit to the public park Superkilen, Team One proposed that Copenhagen leverage its location on the water to build Blue Space, an extension of the city framework that would not rely on any historical mandates but offer instead a new way to look at the city, through the lens of water.
