Job oriented courses should be emphasized.

Oklahoma

Only about 21 per cent of rural males and 12 per cent of rural females are educated at secondary level and above.

Need of Skill Development for Rural Youths

They will also have noted the appeal from Linxiu Zhang to make their own research more policy relevant so they can make an active contribution to the practical development of rural areas. As shown in the United Nations World Social Reports 2020 and 2021, wealthier rural households with a well-educated head are almost as well off as the average urban household, while rural households in the bottom wealth quintiles with an uneducated head are far worse off. In rural areas most of the people depend on the agriculture for their livelihood and this situation makes them unemployable as they are lacking the modern techniques of agriculture.

UN/DESA Policy Brief #106: Reducing poverty and inequality in rural areas: key to inclusive development

Skill development courses can work as a vehicle for a change in the rural areas and can enhance the income and employment for the rural youths. In that context: i Strengthen rural health-care facilities and capacities, train and increase the number of health and nutrition professionals and sustain and expand access to primary health-care systems, including through promoting equitable and improved access to affordable and efficient health-care services, including provision of basic health-care services for the poor in rural areas, in particular in Africa, for effective disease prevention and treatment; ii Create and develop educational programmes for rural communities aimed at disease prevention; iii Eliminate old and new forms of illiteracy in rural communities and ensure provision of primary education and access to secondary and tertiary educational opportunities as well as vocational and entrepreneurship training including proactive and market-related elements to build capacities within rural communities, in particular for youth, young girls, women and indigenous people; iv Encourage rural communities? Such investments must also address inequalities in access to public infrastructure and services within rural areas to ensure that no area or group of people are left behind.

UN/DESA Policy Brief #106: Reducing poverty and inequality in rural areas: key to inclusive development

Rural Development will keep our customers, partners, and stakeholders continuously updated as more actions are taken to better serve rural America. A fair distribution is essential, regardless of whether tenure is based on individual or collective rights.

Challenges facing the development of rural areas in transition countries

In his paper he observed that poverty rates in rural areas in Eastern Europe, the former Soviet Union and Asia were substantially worse than in urban areas. But although representatives from the local public sector, the local economy and the civil society should jointly initiate and implement projects of common interest — supported mainly by the EU LEADER programme, the state continues to dominate in the partnerships. In that context: i Involve women in decision-making in all activities related to rural development; ii Take measures that promote access to and ownership of means of production, including land, capital, entrepreneurship, by women; iii Promote gender equality as well as take measures to achieve equal opportunities for women and men in all aspects of rural development; iv Carry out extensive education, and awareness-raising on the rights of women and the concept of empowerment and gender equality in rural areas.
