Germany and the Next War by Friedrich von Bernhardi

They do not wish to obtain what they can within the limitations of the historically recognized State, but they wish to substitute for it a new State, in which they themselves are the rulers. In spite of all that history teaches, no conviction is felt that the struggle between nations is inevitable, and the growth of civilization is credited with a power to which war must yield. Inhere are numerous other tasks to be fulfilled if we are to discharge our highest duty.

Treaty of Versailles

I do not know how the Second World War could have been prevented but thanks to von Bernhardi, I understand why steep reparations were demanded. The conception of the constitutional State in the strictest sense is an impossibility, and would lead to an intolerable state of things.
