There is no reason to suppose that the Irish approach to the defence would exclude it from consideration.

The Criminal Law Defences Available to Battered Women Who Kill

Reform proposals driven by excuse considerations often involve an overlap between provocation and diminished responsibility. This often occurs to such an extent that allows alternative state of consciousness to fully dominate the core personality.

Diminished responsibility

Under Canadian law there must be evidence of conduct that would have caused an ordinary person to be deprived of self-control and there must be some evidence that the accused actually lost self-control. Whether defendant believed the force was reasonable is irrelevant.
