GC1X0P7 Nimpkish Falls Cache (Traditional Cache) in British Columbia, Canada created by WetcoasterCanuck

Logging roads are the only access to most of the shore. Fishermen come here much of the year. The long narrow valley funnels afternoon winds down the length of the lake, so windsurfing is a favorite here.

MV Nimpkish

Also known as: Ross Reservoir Spectacular Ross Lake is one of the seldom seen gems in north-central Washington. Interesting karst formations in the area give access to several caves in the surrounding landscape. This is a unique charming place to stay and relax and enjoy the oceanside environment! Settle into our historic boutique located in Alert Bay on the Pacific waterfront.

The falls are a great place to come and relax, read a book or do some fishing. The more they know, the easier it is for them to publish your geocache. Magic Lake Estates are found along the shore of Magic Lake and spread toward the coast and forested hills of North Pender Island, one of British Columbia's.

Nimpkish Dollar

Also known as: Upper Thetis Lake, Lower Thetis Lake Thetis Lake is actually two lakes - Upper and Lower Thetis Lakes located within the Thetis Lake Regional Park in View Royal, British Columbia. This vast beach attracts all sorts of surfcraft, but even with the growing throngs of beachgoers it never seems crowded — and with miles of open sands, it probably never will.

Lower Nimpkish Provincial Park

We two were then the only guests staying in the well-equipped, comfortable and homey second floor of the house.
