Civic Guard Portrait Groups

Hals was rediscovered and highly appreciated by French painters of the second half of the 19 th century, who admired his naturalism. However, it is more feasible that this painting is another one of Hals's genre-works.

The work's title derives from an inscription found on the back of the painting that was added in the late 17 th or early 18 th century. The woman is leaning on the man's shoulders, smiling and looking directly at the viewer.

The Civic Guard portrait groups. (1950 edition)

Hals had initially intended to compose this Amsterdam version similar to his earlier Haarlem painting, beginning on the left with a smiling flag bearer wearing a flamboyant cut-sleeve jacket with lace and holding a flag in the color of his sash. The three ensigns stand and the servant is carrying a plate. Malle Babbe is one of Hals's boldest works, painted rapidly with short, thick brush strokes and with a very limited range of colors.
