Human Rights

Human rights are also supposed to be inalienable; because they flow from and protect human existence, they cannot be taken away without endangering the value of that existence.

The Background of Human Rights

Rawls argues that they perform two fundamental roles.

Human Rights

One was an interest in moral philosophy, in particular the question of relativism: whether there are genuinely objective and universal standards of morality. In other countries leaders like Nelson Mandela and Václav Havel have brought about great changes under the banner of human rights.
