Taming the Fire Horse in: East Asian Publishing and Society Volume 5 Issue 2 (2015)

Finally, the restructuring of the international strategic environment brought about by the final Ch'ing reunification of China in 1683 helped to alter the perception of China, and of the entire structure of international space that had until the eve of the Tokugawa period been defined by reference to China. Japan could only agree to the omission of the Japanese era name if, as a quid pro quo, Korea would enter into a written agreement to cease using Ming era names.
