Report of the International Law Commission on the work of its seventy

Year: For decisions of the Permanent Court of International Justice, include the year of decision in parentheses. A related second argument is that since immunity ratione materiae may be pleaded only in order to shield scrutiny from official acts, the acts amounting to international crimes may not be considered official acts.

In this way, no country or bloc should be able to dominate. The plea of state immunity does not mean that a state is not responsible in international law, and it has never been the case that immunity is only available for those acts which are internationally lawful.

Introduction

However, the Appeals Chamber considers that this position does not reflect customary international law on the matter. These findings were upheld on appeal.

International Law and Justice

According to some, when a state engages in acts which are contrary to jus cogens norms it impliedly waives any rights to immunity as the state has stepped out of the sphere of sovereignty. See UK Ministry of Defence, The Manual of the Law of Armed Conflict 2004, at 422—423.

Justification for immunity of senior officials when abroad on a private visit must be sought elsewhere. The predominant justification for such immunities is that they ensure the smooth conduct of international relations and, as such, they are accorded to those state officials who represent the state at the international level. It shall be the duty of the judge designated pursuant to this section to assign the case for hearing at the earliest practicable date and to cause the case to be in every way expedited.
