Legal Forms

All state courts operate under the administrative direction of the Supreme Court. If you have a court order for parenting time but the number of overnights is not clear for example, the order says reasonable parenting time or parenting time as agreed by the parties, or parenting time is reserved, you can file asking the court for an order with a more specific schedule. You may find it helpful to review the handout.

Public

We hope that you find this site both a useful accompaniment to the Handbook and a useful resource in its own right, and welcome feedback to alex. Carefully read and follow the Instructions in the forms packet.

Minnesota Judicial Branch

If the parent does not do what the judge orders to correct the problem, the person can be put in jail. Stipulation agreement to Modify Support If all parties agree to change support AND sign a written agreement, they can file a Stipulation with the court. You can estimate the amount of child support the court might order using the online.

Public

If you do not know the address, you must make a reasonable effort to try to get it. Stipulation Forms: The MN Judicial Branch does NOT publish sample Stipulation forms. COLA increases do not usually happen automatically unless the county child support office is involved in collecting support.

Divorce

Advance Directive Forms Listed below are links to living will and health care power of attorney forms that are provided by statute. Most people prefer to serve by mail. The only way to make sure the increase does not happen before your motion is heard by the court is to serve and file the Motion to Stop COLA forms by April 30 th.

Minnesota Judicial Branch

Learn how to get child support on the FAQ's tab. If you have a court order that states the number of overnights and you would like to have the amount of your child support recalculated, you will need to file a Motion to Modify Child Support. While it is not required, you are encouraged to consult an attorney for assistance in executing these documents and answering questions specific to your needs.
