Death So Suddenly Poem by Katherine Perry

It commemorates the time when died to retrieve the knowledge of the , and the night is said to be a time of weakness in the boundary between the living and the dead. Under the kitchen-table leg My knee is pressing against his knee. Or to the lute give heed In the green bowers.

background

Up until recently, this poem was attributed to Clement Clarke Moore, but in his book Author Unknown: On The Trail Of Anonymous, Professor Don Foster gathered enough evidence to show it was Livingston who was the real author.
