15 Arab Poets of the 21st Century

Indeed, it is through these ambivalent depictions of contemporary locales and the socioeconomic realities that they intimate that the poet fashions some of the most poignant portions of the poems. Bombardment of Fort Fisher, near Wilmington, New York, 1865.

The Arabic term for twisted sands is bi-siqti liwa. In contrast to his dohe which are simple and have moral and ethical overtones, his other poetry is more literally complex. As one of the writers who broke with the old and rigid conventions of Arabic poetry and literary prose, he is among the great figures in the twentieth-century revival of Arabic literature.
