I really love the idea of the tray you can pull out onto the table and set next to the players.

Wingspan Nesting Box

I prefer not having a ton of birds crammed onto the cover.

This area is currently a little too wide, as is the section on the right for the cards. Fourth Prototype A lot of this content—photos and text—is repeated from the third prototype, as there were only a few changes made in this round of revisions. At the very beginning each player is dealt 5 random bird cards and 1 of each of the 5 food tokens and you can keep however many of those cards you want at the cost of 1 food each.

Or is that when the bottom layer will be utilized? Heck even if you are not a bird lover, the little bits of bird knowledge on each card is fun to read! The middle layer is designed to hold 1100 unsleeved bird cards or 850 cards with thin sleeves or 450 cards with thick premium sleeves between the removable tray and the right side.

Wingspan (board game)

I am without a doubt, getting this organizer box.
