The owners of the three collections used in the data visualizations in this paper all require researchers to sign user declaration stating that the researcher understands and will comply with the rules and regulations of the institution with regards to privacy, providing copies of published works, and copyright. Only about two-thirds of the Toronto office collection was completed, and the Los Angeles and the Dutch Restitution offices are currently not included in this name index. An advantage to using the program is that it allows searching by any field, such as a last name or maiden name.
