Renewing America's Food Traditions: Saving and Savoring the Continent's Most Endangered Foods by Gary Paul Nabhan

Deborah Madison is a freelance writer and board member of the Foundation for Bio-Diversity and the Seed Savers Exchange, among others. We are threatened with the loss of productive agricultural lands and farmers, and the productive species which feed our bodies and souls.

Renewing America's Food Traditions:... book

Founded in 1985, Whistlestop sells new and secondhand books in all categories and a wide variety of sidelines, from magazines to puzzles, literary t-shirts to cds and dvds, from totes to local honey. It's broken down regionally acorn nation, salmon nation--which may have lent to the four stars instead of five and discusses and details foods at risk in america today, including grasses, animals, fruit and vegetables.

And that's a thesis of the book.

Renewing America's Food Traditions: Saving and Savoring the Continent's Most Endangered Foods — WHISTLESTOP BOOKSHOP

One nice thing about the book: it provides hints to help you track down some of the food sources some are so rare that one cannot use them to cook at this time. It is not often one sees SQUIRREL recipes anymore.

Renewing America's Food Traditions:... book

In addition, it offers a eulogy to a once-common game food that has gone extinct--the passenger pigeon--to underscore how rapidly a food species can be depleted if its habitat is destroyed and harvesting pressures are ignored. A must read for everyone who cares about food and the land from whence it comes.
