A brief history of the Statue of Liberty. If nothing else, there are some great links to information about the Statue of Liberty.

Statue of Liberty - Primary Sources

Great site that directs you to about a dozen other sites to learn about the Statue of Liberty. Sites include a brief history of the Statue of Liberty, and links to the library of Congress site (great primary sources), and links to the National Park Service site. This is a great site to use as a resource for use in the classroom – as it has one library, Grade 2-8.

American Symbols: The Statue of Liberty. This site is designed for grades 4-8. It is a study of America's life. The primary purpose of this lesson is to provide a context for discussing September 11 – students will design a memorial to the event. Discusses Grade K-3.

Statue of Liberty - Secondary Sources

There are several lesson plans for grades 4-8, depending on lesson chosen. Some of these use the Ken Burns PBS series on the Statue of Liberty.

Statue of Liberty - Primary Sources

Grade 4-6. This is a 40 page curriculum guide on the Statue of Liberty. The symbols on the Statue are explained. There is also an activity which includes writing a newspaper, making a newspaper, reading a newspaper, and writing a letter to the editor of the newspaper.

ELEMENTARY ART PACING GUIDE

It makes sense to connect subjects. The perfect lesson a This was one of my favorite lessons from last year.

K

Having videos periodically where they see your face or you talking directly to the camera will help them feel a connection to you. Values will be emphasized in order to help students understand the role that lighting plays in our perception of objects. Students will be given the opportunity to practice various two and three dimensional media techniques to express ideas.

K-6 ARTS LESSON PLANS This collection of online arts lesson plans began in 1997. They all perform those basic functions.

Curriculum Guides / Art

I can give them a lot of individual attention. You can see that I wrote a few years back. Specific drawing and painting techniques will be taught in order to aid the students to attain a certain degree of realism in their work, and to depict ideas and emotions.
