The teacher gives a definite assignment of enough work to keep each pupil busy for several days. But the last sentence is not interesting. He officiated as judge for fourteen years; but in the course o time, so many criminal cases were brought before him for adjudication, whose only origin was so plainly referable to early neglect in the culprit's education, that the noble heart of the judge could no longer bear to pronounce sentence of condemnation against the prisoners, for he looked upon them as men, who, almost without a paradox, might be called guiltless offenders.
