Emperor Yuan of Jin

In 397, the Northern Wei captured Hebei and splitting the Later Yan into two. Wang Dao and his cousin, the general , served in key roles, and it was said at the time that the domain was ruled equally by the Simas and the Wangs. The Xiongnu abandoned nomadism and the elite were educated in Chinese-Confucian literate culture, but yet retained their distinct identity and resentful of the discrimination they received.
