Transbronchial Biopsy

Cataluña et al showed that the presence of necrosis significantly affected the concordance rate between biopsy and surgical specimens. The pattern of staining with keratin markers may differ between SCLC and NSCLC, where the keratin in SCLCs often has dotlike perinuclear staining, whereas NSCLCs show more diffuse cytoplasmic staining, but otherwise, the distinction still relies mostly on cytologic and histologic features. For the management of these heterogenous group of tumour further subclassification is not required.
