Theatre review: Sorrows and Rejoicings at Tricycle, Kilburn

. An interesting play, but it does fall into inevitable plot and symbolism rather than character development.

Is this—God forbid—what has happened to Athol Fugard, whose creative height and international reputation were forged in the heat of apartheid? Helena Ruoti as Allison is stoic and cold; she loved Dawid and his writing, but without sharing his passions, did she really know and understand him? Forget-Me-Not Lane West Coast Premiere by Peter Nichols; Directed by Arvin Brown. The estranged English wife, Allison, the devoted mistress and black servant, Marta, and the angry mixed-race illegitimate daughter, Rebecca, struggle to come to terms with each other and the memory of Dawid.

. The play deals with adult issues and has strong language in it.

Sorrows and Rejoicings by Athol Fugard

What Fugard is doing to focus on those winds is the cause of more rejoicings than sorrows. Thanks to Keri of Warwick Arts Theatre for the photos. Sorrows and Rejoicings explores the legacy of Apartheid on two women—one white, the other black—who on the surface seem to have little in common except for their love of one man, a white poet who is attached to the Karoo land of South Africa.

January 2002

It's a I read this play as part of a summer reading challenge. Set in a home in Karoo, South Africa, in 1999, the play shows Dawid Olivier's widow, his mistress and his daughter as they deal with his recent death and the personal, political, and racial conflicts during South Africa's movement from apartheid to postapartheid.

Sorrows and rejoicings (2002 edition)

You cannot compose a play entirely in the pluperfect. Maybe this is no accident. Scott Caldwell as Marta, John Glover as Dawid and Marcy Harriell as Rebecca.
