June 2004 — Reorganization within NICHD's Center for Research for Mothers and Children establishes the Obstetric and Pediatric Pharmacology Branch to meet the increased demand for research leadership and support of legislation passed to ensure the safety of drugs used to treat children. The new Branch includes the NICHD Pediatric Pharmacology Research Units Network, the Obstetric-Fetal Pharmacology Research Network, and NICHD Best Pharmaceuticals for Children Act activities. Twenty-two percent of infants in Bangladesh have low birth weight, and 41% of children under age five have stunted growth; the majority of these children lack appropriate stimulation and early learning opportunities.

Link Between Child Care and Academic Achievement and Behavior Persists Into Adolescence

The National Institutes of Health today released to the scientific community an unparalleled dataset from the Adolescent Brain Cognitive Development ABCD study. By incorporating simple messages to encourage parents to create nurturing environments for children and support nonviolent parenting skills, Triple P aims to build healthy, positive relationships between parent and child. Many states have passed legislation to increase the use of community health workers within the primary care system, and a few states encourage the use of CHW for activities that may help prevent child maltreatment.
