In many villages however, rebuilding of their schools, clinics and places of worship has been slow and difficult.

Problem and Prospect of Rural Development in Nigeria

Introduction

Since the attainment of political independence in 1960, there has been uneven concentration of Government efforts and resources on the development of urban centres with near-total neglect of the rural communities which unfortunately inhabit over sixty five per cent of Nigerian citizens.

In Dabna, locals explained that the militants took their time, finding people who had hid in and around their homes, and killing them. Rural Development typifies a sustained development in the quality of life of the rural people.

Urban And Rural Settlement In Nigeria

Umuahia North Local government area is made up of twenty 20 political wards and 48 Autonomous communities. In order to bring about real development in the rural areas, there must exist active collaboration between government, non-governmental agencies, the private sector and the rural communities themselves.

According to locals, the market areas became more and more scarce. Unemployment due to lack of industries in rural areas has also encourage rural-urban migration in Nigeria.

On the rural

Also there are no social activities like luxury restaurants, hotels, social entertainment centers and good road networks etc. In 2005 the numbers dropped to 51%. Over population often puts pressure on a country to produce more.

Urban And Rural Settlement In Nigeria

The recession has placed even more strain on government spending.
