Master Drawings New York

I couldn't help going through all my dreams and Sprinkled with a journal entry and a few letters, some to Ted Hughes and some to her mother, her collection of drawings offers one a glimpse into Sylvia Plath's early life and mind. Venezuelan holdings feature ceramic vessels from Trujillo and bat-shaped stone pendants from the Aragua and Valencia basins.

It is a visual look into what Sylvia Plath was seeing and focusing on in the world around her, when her pen formed images rather than words. Recent donations of well documented mid to late twentieth-century collections complement earlier holdings, including Quiche dance costumes from Totonicapan and other objects, including masks, ceramics, engraved gourds, and weaving tools. Other collectors simply need to own the very best of everything and so jump at the opportunity to acquire new models of rare and exotic cars.
