The pigeons flew for a while and opened their beaks for heat. I ordered a copy of a book called Angare ka Tarikhi Pas-e Manzar aur Taraqqi-Pasand Tahrik from India under the impression that it was the same one I saw at a friend's house, which included both criticism and the original stories, but now I think I was wrong. I don't even remember what country it was, but it wasn't India.

Muhammad Qaswar Shakoor: Major Themes in in by Ahmed Ali

So Mir Nihal is not able to forget the grandeur of past.

Muhammad Qaswar Shakoor: Twilight in Delhi: A critical Review

They knew various arts and crafts. The narrator is a woman who feels oppressed by the heat, but also by her confinement indoors in the middle of the Delhi summer. They succeeded in establishing virtual control by 1818.

Twilight in Delhi: A Novel

What I loved the best is the Sufi poetry and couplets which are sprinkled all over the narration.
