Chapter 12

I return to my early point: What about the carnal Corinthians then? And the Calvinists, as you see, stick where Calvin left them .. Luther and Calvin were precious shining lights. If these extreme views were to be considered as serious and helpful contributions to the Body of Christ by able scholars, then one would wonder how the apostle Peter stood when the episode of Galatians 2:11-14 occurred? Maintains that, in Hungary, his views assisted critics to an interest in an awakening of the people's traditions, to an awareness of the value of folk poetry, to a recognition of the originality of the new Hungarian literature, and to lifting this literature from isolation and placing it on the same level as the rest of Hungarian literature. Yes, many would die physically, but there is no need to believe they perished forever.
