ANONYMOUS 1685 A True and natural description of the Great Level of the Fenns. YOU'VE read, sir, in poetick strain, How Varus and the Mantuan swain Have on my birthday been invited, But I was forc'd in verse to write it Upon a plain repast to dine, And taste my old Campanian wine; But I, who all punctilios hate, Though long familiar with the great, Nor glory in my reputation, Am come without an invitation; And, though I'm us'd to right Falernian, I'll deign for once to taste Iernian; But fearing that you might dispute Had I put on my common suit My breeding and my politesse, I visit in my birthday dress; My coat of purest Turkey red, With gold embroidery richly spread; To which I've sure as good pretensions, As Irish lords who starve on pensions. It is very easy to make green or black tea at a short notice—but not coffee.

BABINGTON, Charles Cardale 1883 Ancient Cambridgeshire: or an attempt to trace Roman and other ancient roads that passed through the County of Cambridge; with a record of the places where Roman coins and other remains have been found. Now, madam, you'll think it a strange thing to say, But the sight of a book makes me sick to this day. Even as a member of the Nonjuring communion he was intimately associated with many leading Churchmen of the Establishment; and when, to his great gratification, he felt that he could again with an easy conscience attend the services of his parish church, the ever-widening gap that had begun to open was in his case no hindrance to familiar intercourse with his old Nonjuring friends.
