A. To get more insight into a possible involvement of a direct action of ergot derivatives on dopamine receptors we studied the effect of acute and chronic dihydroergotoxine DHT treatment on 3H-Spiroperidol and 3H-N-Propylhorapomorphine 3H-NPA binding to rat striatal membrane preparations. The primary metabolites are hydroxylated in the A ring, and pep-tide alkaloids are also modified in the peptide moiety.

Unfortunately, our brain cells contain more unsaturated fats than any other part of the body, therefore it is our brains that are most susceptible to peroxidation. One of

Results of Clinical Pharmacology Studies With Ergot Alkaloids -- E.

Dihydroergocryptine DHECP , an ergot alkaloid with potent dopaminergic activity, was injected acutely or subchronically to aged 24 months old male rats of the F344 strain, at the dose of 0.
